EU Directive 2012/19/EU on Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) and EU Directive 2011/65/EU on the Restriction of the use of certain Hazardous Substances in electrical and electronic equipment (RoHS)

Dear Sir or Madam,

After thoroughly examining the EU directives 2012/19/EU (WEEE) and 2011/65/EU (RoHS), we concluded that these legal provisions neither apply to our company nor to the products manufactured by us.

Equipment which is specifically designed, and is to be installed as part of a large-scale fixed installation, which can fulfil its function only if it is part of that installation, and which can be replaced only by the same specifically designed equipment, is excluded from the scope of both directives (see RoHS Directive points (c) and (e) of Article 2(4) and WEEE Directive point (b) of Article 2(3) and point (c) of Article 2(4)).

Our products fulfil these requirements and therefore are excluded from the scope of both directives.

As an environmentally conscious company with a valid certification according to the international standard ISO 14001:2004, we have, however, committed ourselves to refrain from the use of hazardous substances according to said RoHS directive.

Best regards,

DREHMO GmbH
